

Co-organization Reatching into the Rabbit Hole

You love to bring people from completely different backgrounds to an exotic location to discuss hot topics from science, impacting our society?

You have a soft spot for Alice who travels through the rabbit hole into wonderland and like to create a similar atmosphere during the events?

Then you are the predestinated to become an organizer of Reatching into the Rabbit Hole, an unconventional series of events hosted by reatch.

Tasks for each event

- Define the topic and elaborate a self-contained concept that is scientifically grounded and has an impact on our society
- Find one or two experts who prepare a short and comprehensible overview about the state of the art in a specific research area.
- Find an exotic location (i.e. rooftop, art gallery etc.) that can be used for free for the event in Zürich, Bern or Basel.
- Write a catchy advertising text for the event and create an appealing flyer.
- Keep the Rabbit Hole website up to date (with our help)
- Get drinks and snacks and prepare the apéro.

Requirements

- You are open, curious, engaged, passionate about science and a good team player.
- You are motivated to organize series of events with 6 events per year.
- You are aware that all events are science related and scientifically grounded.
- You meet the timetable and communicate with different units of reatch to guarantee smooth event planning and great events.
- You make the best out of a low budget, since the events are based on donations from the participants.
- Ideally you know a bunch of people who present interesting topics at the events as referees and know some cool locations.
- You are fluid in English, German or French to carry out the event

You gain

- Experience in event management in collaboration with a highly motivated team
- Moderation and presenting skills
- Contact to very interesting people and speakers
- Opportunity to have a say in shaping reatch
